

Quilt show well attended

About 75 quilts were displayed at the Crazy Quilt Guild's show during the quasiquicentennial celebration in Imperial last weekend. Quilts dating back to before 1900 and as new as 2010 were displayed for the viewers' pleasure at the Lied Imperial Public Library. Guild President Linda Clements said it was fun to hear remarks made by visitors concerning some of the signature quilts on display. Those were made by clubs or guilds, with members each contributing a block. (Republican photo)
